

Friday, December 2, 2011

In this issue:

- The Canadian volunteering landscape at the close of IYV+10
-

The Canadian volunteering landscape at the close of IYV+10

To mark the end of the 10th anniversary of International Year of Volunteers, Ruth MacKenzie, President & CEO of Volunteer Canada, reflects on the state of volunteering in Canada. The piece provides an overview of how civic engagement has grown and changed in recent years, and how MacKenzie believes it will continue to evolve into the future. With the launch of the UNV's first State of the World's Volunteerism Report on December 5, the blog contextualizes Canada's position on the world volunteering stage.

What do you think volunteering in Canada should look like in 2021? Click here to share your own vision for Canada in 10 years, at IYV+20.