

Thursday, April 19, 2012

In this issue:

- Volunteer Canada launches 2012 Edition of the Canadian Code for Volunteer Involvement
 - Statistics Canada offers new insights into 2010 CSGVP results
 - National Volunteer Week recap from Volunteer Canada
 - Happy Global Youth Service Day
-

Volunteer Canada launches 2012 Edition of the Canadian Code for Volunteer Involvement

Volunteer Canada launches 2012 Edition of the Canadian Code for Volunteer Involvement

This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Canadian Code for Volunteer Involvement. To recognize the milestone, Volunteer Canada updated the Code to reflect the current volunteering context in Canada. Revisions take into account the shifting realities of today's volunteers and current volunteer engagement practices.

Download the new 2012 Edition of the CCVI.

Supplementary materials, including the Code Audit Tool and The Code in Action document will be released later this year.

Statistics Canada offers new insights into 2010 CSGVP results

Statistics Canada released the article "Volunteering in Canada" in the new edition of Canadian Social Trends. The report provides insights into the Canada Survey of Giving, Volunteering and Participating, specifically in terms of volunteering trends.

Read on for some highlights ...

National Volunteer Week recap from Volunteer Canada

With National Volunteer Week approaching its end, Volunteer Canada would like to offer a recap of the NVW activities we participated in.

How are you celebrating National Volunteer Week? Let us know on Facebook or Twitter.

Happy Global Youth Service Day

This year's Global Youth Service Day runs from April 20 to 22. GYSD is an annual campaign that celebrates and mobilizes young people who are involved in their communities. To learn more about the campaign, visit the GYSD website.